

Digital Media

APPROACH

Ruberto, Israel & Weiner has represented digital media companies for many years, and understands every aspect of this dynamic industry. We have deep experience in intellectual property, corporate law, mergers and acquisitions, and business and consumer technologies, and can provide digital media companies with effective and robust legal strategies with respect to raising capital, licensing, and building and protecting their intellectual property.

We understand that protecting content is of critical concern to digital media producers, and our team offers sophisticated and comprehensive services to help clients fully protect and enforce their intellectual property rights.

Our digital media clients have included startups, video producers, music publishers, online video, and music distributors whose businesses encompass audio and visual media such as cellphones, compact discs, DVDs, and content found on and distributed through the Internet.
